

Conferees Near Compromise In Feed Grain Row

Close To Provisions President Had Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate-House conferees on the farm bill were reported late Monday to have agreed tentatively on a compromise which would give the administration largely what it wants on the key questions of feed grains.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.), chairman of the conferees, would say only after the 2 1/2-hour session that, "We have discussed various proposals and I'm sure we can reach an agreement tomorrow morning."

But from other sources it was learned that a compromise of this sort appeared to be in the making:

1. The House conferees would accept the Senate version of price supports for feed grains — oats, barley, rye and sorghums. The Senate voted for generally lower supports than the House and made feed grains ineligible for the soil bank program. The administration strongly opposed the House plan.

Five Injured By Gun Blast In Brink's Truck

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (AP) — A shotgun accidentally went off inside a Brink's, Inc., armored truck Monday and blasted a hole right through the "armor plate." Five sidewalk strollers were wounded by flying pellets.

Two Brink's employees were eating their lunch inside the rear compartment of the parked truck. They had just delivered some money bags to a bank and were to pick up some more at a business office after lunch.

One of the guards knocked over a shotgun that was standing against a wall. He grabbed for it and it went off.

The blast of the heavy shotgun pellets ripped a one-inch hole in the back of the truck, peeling back the metal as neatly as a can opener.

Five persons in the noon-hour throng walking past the truck were nicked by pellets.

Two were admitted to a hospital, but none was hurt seriously.

The blast apparently was aimed downward, and most of the passers by were struck in the feet or legs.

The silver-colored Brink's truck has impressively riveted, metal-clad rear carrying compartments, with thin barred windows placed high up.

The company is a nationwide delivery service for cash and securities.

SEISMOGRAPHS IN ST. LOUIS RECORD H-BOMB BLAST

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Two seismographs at St. Louis University recorded the hydrogen bomb explosion near Bikini Atoll as "very slight disturbances" here.

Ross R. Heinrich, director of geophysics at the university's Institute of Technology, said Monday the explosion was recorded at about 12:04 p.m. CST Sunday, 13 minutes after the blast.

"Time of the recording is about correct for the 6,500 miles the ground wave had to travel," Heinrich said. "If the disturbance had shown on only one instrument we might have attributed it to a local shock."

Nab Bank Bandits Who Took $1,000, Wounded Cashier

PESHIGO, Wis. (AP) — Two nervous-fingered gunmen, who earlier held up the Peshigo National Bank and wounded a cashier for no apparent reason, were tracked down and captured three hours later by a posse of 100 lawmen after a gun battle Monday.

The bandits, identified as Albert James Vito and Harold Vaughn, both of Chicago, gave up after trading shots with sheriff's deputies on a marshy island five miles south of this northeastern Wisconsin community. Both were taken to the Marinette Jail.

The loot was placed at $1,000, but Sheriff Mariner Kohlmann said deputies found only a $5 bill in the brush near the bandits' getaway car.

The posse, consisting of heavily armed sheriff's deputies from the counties of Marinette, and Oconto, Wis., and Menominee, Mich., converged on the scene after word of the 10 a.m. holdup was flashed.

Wounded during the foray on the bank was a 26-year-old clerk, Mrs. Yvonne Siefert. A bullet, ricocheting off a counter used by the cashiers, pierced her jaw. Doctors at Marinette General Hospital said her jaw was fractured, but that her condition is "good."

Witnesses said four shots were fired by the bandits even though none of the bank's four employees resisted. The money was stuffed into a canvas bag.

Cypriots Kill Briton, Wound Three In Riots

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Cypriot rebels hiding among rioting schoolgirls tossed bombs at British troops trying to restore order in Nicosia Monday, killing one Briton and wounding three others.

Bomb splinters injured seven Greek Cypriot civilians in nearby shops, and two policemen. British reinforcements ringed the riot area in an effort to trap the bomb throwers. As tear gas clouds cleared later a grim silence settled over the sunny city. Touring police loudspeaker vans announced that an indefinite curfew had been ordered.

The battle, worst in Nicosia for weeks, began quietly enough with schoolgirls demonstrating for the second day for Enosis — union with Greece.

Then, as the troops moved in to break up the march, rebels mingling with the girls threw bombs. The demonstrators chanted EOKA slogans and praise of EOKA, the underground fighters against British rule.

The girls formed their procession as they left church services observing the feast of St. Constantine and St. Helena, a national and religious holiday for Greeks, who make up four-fifths of this island's half-million population.

The first bombings came when three jeeps of troops tear-gassed a group of 30 schoolgirls. The soldiers caught a flag-carrying girl and took the flag from her.

TEST AIR-DROPPED H-BOMB — Hydrogen bomb stem elongates as fireball rises behind dark bank of clouds over the tiny target island of Namu in Bikini Atoll where the U. S. made its first air drop of the fiery nuclear weapon. The bomb was released from a B-52 jet bomber at 50,000 feet and exploded two miles above the target. The H-bomb test, scheduled for May 8th, had been postponed ten times because of wind conditions.

Start Detailed Analysis Of Hydrogen Bomb Test

USS MT. MCKINLEY, Off Bikini (Tuesday) (AP) — Nuclear scientists Tuesday began a detailed analysis of what the first American air-dropped H-bomb did when it exploded two miles above a test target island in the mid-Pacific Monday.

The scientists sought most of their answers in the huge amount of data gathered by a vast array of recording instruments set up on Namu, the target island, on other islands of Bikini Atoll and taken through the huge atomic cloud by airplanes.

The nuclear weapon test task force, headed by Rear Adm. B. Hall Hanlon, concealed behind brief, laconic language all technical details that might be of use to an enemy.

Former Minister Works To Free Jailed Woman

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A former Presbyterian minister turned lawyer, who estimates he has helped free hundreds of persons from prison in the last 23 years, is working to free a 51-year-old woman he believes is innocent of the arsenic poisoning of her husband.

Paul Thurlow of Wilmington, Ill., said Sunday he first became convinced of the innocence of Mrs. Elsie Wrosch, Milwaukee, about three weeks ago after lengthy interrogation and now "I clearly believe she did not commit the crime."

The sad-faced woman submitted to a lie detector test Saturday, Thurlow said, and "absolutely passed" it.

Mrs. Wrosch now is serving a life term in the Wisconsin State Prison for Women at Taycheedah. She was sentenced in 1951 after being convicted of first degree murder in the poison death of her husband, Bernhard, 70. The couple lived in Milwaukee at the time.

Thurlow, 56, an experienced interrogator, said he couldn't break down her story during prolonged questioning—the first step in such cases.

"I have had years of practice, but I couldn't break that woman," Thurlow said.

Report Missing Man, Scott, Seen At Bishop, Calif.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man believed to be L. Ewing Scott, widely sought husband of missing socialite Evelyn T. Scott, Monday was reported to have been seen 300 miles north of here not long after he vanished May 1.

The report was given the sheriff's office by Chief of Police John Preku of Bishop, Calif., a community on the main highway between Los Angeles and Reno, Nev. Preku said a man answering Scott's description registered at a Bishop motel under the name Robert Scott and spent May 2, 3 and 4 there while his car was being repaired.

The car bore the same license number as that on an automobile purchased by Scott a few weeks before he disappeared, the chief said. The car was full of luggage and the man was traveling alone. His $25,000 bail was forfeited last week when he failed to appear in court to enter a plea to charges of grand theft and forgery in connection with his missing wife's estate. Mrs. Scott has been missing for more than a year.

Reports 'Alarming Increase' In Lung Infections

NEW YORK (AP) — Strange kinds of germs causing persistent lung infections are showing "alarming increases," a Wisconsin researcher reported Monday.

Some cause illness resembling tuberculosis, but they are not TB germs. These germs are possibly of a new kind, or else are simply being recognized more accurately now.

They are found in persons hospitalized as having TB, or sometimes other lung illnesses.

An upswing in incidence of these new infections was reported at the opening of the National Tuberculosis Assn.'s 52nd annual meeting by Dr. Marie L. Koch of the Veterans Administration Hospital, Wood, Wis.

In a 15-month period laboratory studies detected 156 cases of these infections among TB patients, and 142 among persons hospitalized for non-tubercular illness, he said.

Among TB patients, 125 had persistent infections, as did 60 of the non-TB patients, she said. The infections were far more common in the late fall and early winter than other times.

TB experts attending the convention said the American Trudeau Society and Veterans Administration are cooperating in a study to identify these "new" strains, and to learn what illness and damage they may cause.

Snyder Opposes Denver Vacation For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower's personal physician said Monday he is against any idea of a Colorado vacation by the President this summer because of the heart attack Eisenhower suffered in that altitude last year.

The doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, told newsmen he wanted to emphasize that neither the President nor anyone else had sounded him out on the possibility of a Colorado vacation.

But Snyder said that if his opinion should be sought regarding a vacation there, "I would not be in favor of it."

"If it were left up to me, I would be against going to one of the high altitudes in this first year after the heart attack. I would prefer to play it on the conservative side."

Snyder's statements were in a chat with newsmen on the White House lawn during a reception given by the President and Mrs. Eisenhower for service veterans from hospitals in the Washington area.

There have been reports that the President might pass up Colorado this year in favor of a vacation somewhere in Wisconsin.

In response to inquiries about that, as well as the chances of returning to Denver, the White House press office has said consistently that no plans have been made as yet.

Ike Shakes 811 Hands At Party For Veterans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower shook 811 hands Monday at the annual White House garden party for hospitalized veterans.

The guests seemed to have a good time and Eisenhower showed no signs of weariness at this first big reception he has taken part in since his heart attack last September.

The handshaking lasted 45 minutes, with the President and Mrs. Eisenhower welcoming the veterans at the south entrance to the White House.

At the start of the party, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, White House physician, remarked Eisenhower was in good shape and added: "This won't tax him."

So far as onlookers could tell, Eisenhower's strength was not taxed. When he had greeted the last of his guests, he turned to Postmaster General Summerfield and remarked with a smile:

"This was the easiest of all these parties we've ever had."

Among the veterans were seven stretcher cases and about a score in wheel chairs.

The day was perfect for garden party with the temperature in the middle 80s and the sun brilliant. A big refreshment tent was set up on the lawn for serving fruit punch, ice cream, cake, cookies and coffee.

Wooden Wings Carry Birdman To His Death

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — French birdman Leo Valentin dived 9,000 feet to his death Monday trying to fly with wooden wings.

A holiday crowd of 100,000 seeking thrills at a Whitsun air display groaned in horror as he dropped like a rock into a field of wheat alongside Speke Airport.

Valentin, 37, called himself "the only living birdman." He met death through a twofold accident. First, he crashed into the side of his plane as he jumped, and so shattered one of his wings. Second, his two parachutes failed to open. One trailed behind him gleaming in the sun like a huge white sausage as he fell.

Valentin had flown often and successfully with his wings, which had a span of nine feet. They were attached to a steel corset and he controlled them with allersons as though he were a miniature glider.

After descending to around 1,000 feet he would open his parachute and drop gently down. His record flight was three miles. Monday he had hoped to double the distance.

Champion parachutist in the French army, Valentin had made more than 600 jumps, two of them at the show here.

"I'm no daredevil," he once said. "I always take care that nothing can go wrong."

Minnie Mangum Pleads Guilty To Stealing Million Dollars

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Minnie Mangum, whose phantom bookkeeping system financed her popular role of benefactor pleaded guilty Monday to stealing more than a million dollars from her employers since 1933.

Corporation Court Judge H. Lawrence Bullock accepted the plea of the plump former building and loan company officer and deferred sentence until June 25 pending a probation report.

The 52-year-old defendant, long noted for her lavish generosity to family and friends, was indicted last month on 16 presentments, one of which alleged she embezzled $2,884,000 from the now defunct Commonwealth Building and Loan Assn. Miss Mangum was assistant secretary-treasurer of the firm.

The defendant, a 190-pound spinster who lives with a blind sister, was convicted last Thursday of lying to the State Corporation Commission about Commonwealth's financial condition and her punishment was fixed by the trial jury at 10 years in prison. Monday Miss Mangum was dock-

State Laws In Other Crafts Not Affected

WASHINGTON (AP) — State "Right to Work" laws as applied in the railroad industry fell Monday before a 9-0 Supreme Court ruling.

State laws banning union shops in other industries were not affected.

The decision upheld a 1951 amendment of the National Railway Labor Act which authorizes the railroad and labor unions to enter into union shop agreements, state laws to the contrary notwithstanding.

Under the union shop, a worker must join within 60 days the union which holds collective bargaining rights for his craft or class of workers, or lose his job.

Eighteen states have laws banning membership or nonmembership in unions as a condition to holding a job. Proponents call them "right to work" laws. Some union leaders described them as "right to scab" laws.

Except as applied in the railroad industry the state "right to work" laws remain intact. The Taft-Hartley Act permits union shop agreements, but specifies this does not apply in states which have laws prohibiting them.

Justice Douglas, author of Monday's opinion, said that in the absence of conflicting federal legislation, "there can be no doubt that it is within the police power of a state to prohibit" the union shop.

But, referring to the Railway Labor Act he said the power of Congress to regulate labor relations in interstate industries is likewise well-established.

"Industrial peace along the arteries of commerce is a legitimate objective; and Congress has great latitude in choosing the methods with which it is to be obtained," he said.

Douglas added that "much might be said pro and con if the policy issue were before us," but he said the question of policy is one with which the judiciary has no concern.

Asserting Congress has the final say on policy issues, Douglas said:

"If it acts unwisely the electorate can make a change. The task of the judiciary ends once it appears that the legislative matter is relevant or appropriate to the constitutional power which Congress exercises."

STRESSES NEED FOR TEACHERS OF SCIENCE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An Illinois educator warned industrial managers Monday that good scientists must be attracted to teaching in order to produce the young talent they need to keep abreast of scientific development.

"If every youngster with good scientific background is going to be picked off by industry, we just won't have competent teachers," John Lester Buford told the National Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Buford, Mt. Vernon, Ill., school superintendent, is president of the National Education Assn. "We need well-trained teachers," he said, "and to get them we must provide respectable salaries, decent working conditions, and a high place in the community."

Opportunity To Recoup

In a year that has not yet produced much constructive national legislation, the U.S. Senate now has a golden opportunity to get things off the ground by passing the $52 billion House-approved highway program.

The measure in question would give this nation the biggest road-building program in its history. And anyone aware of the scale of our highway problem knows that a lesser plan would be no service to the country.

Under the new program as endorsed by the House, $27.5 billion would be spent over a 13-year period to build a 40,000-mile network of super-roads across the United States. The federal government would put up 90 per cent of the cost, the states the remainder.

The other $20-odd billion would be devoted to expanding the existing federal-state highway program under which costs are equally shared between the two levels of government.

To foot the cost the new proposal carries higher taxes on gasoline, diesel fuel, tires, retreaded rubber, and on trucks and buses—the heaviest highway users.

Broken down, it is estimated these levies would cost the average motorist another $6.50 a year, or about two cents a day. The truck operators properly would feel a bigger bite—some $400 a year increase for running a large truck.

As the Senate contemplates this huge measure, it has for comparison the five-year, $18 billion highway program it approved last year. On the face of it, this latter plan is thoroughly inadequate to the kind of long-range projection the nation's highways need.

The regular federal-state program has been terribly insufficient for years. The proof is in the growth of the turnpike network built by revenue bonds paid for by motorists' tolls. Drivers have been willing to pay these charges because they meant wonderful miles of express routes free of stoplights, cross traffic, side road handicaps, and the like.

It has been fairly said that with a few exceptions the turnpikes have been the only truly modern highways in America.

The question before the Senate now is whether it is prepared, as the House evidently was, to plan highways in terms as big as the problem. The government of the United States has a responsibility for this program. Up to now it has abdicated that responsibility. It is time Washington moved in to shape and assist development of a highway web which can match the country's great growth and give it necessary security.

★ DR. JORDAN SAYS ★

Many Factors Can Cause Varied Types of Deafness

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

"I would like a discussion on deafness," writes Mrs. S. "Please do not refer me to a doctor," she adds. She goes on to state that she wears a hearing aid but this makes her nervous.

It is a large order to discuss deafness in a few words. It is quite useless to "prescribe" for "deafness" at a distance since there are several different varieties as well as degrees of hardness of hearing. The proper steps to take can only be decided after various special examinations.

The hearing mechanism is really quite remarkable. Sound waves in the air reach the ear and pass through the ear canal. They then go through an intricate mechanism in the middle ear to the nerve fibers which carry the sound to the brain.

Just imagine the extraordinary mechanism in the brain which allows us to sort out the sounds which it receives so that we can tell one word from another.

Hardness of hearing may occur at any point along the pathway between the outer ear and the brain itself. For example, obstruction of the ear canal with wax or something else will deaden the sounds. We all hear poorly with a bad cold because of interference with this passage of sound waves.

A Good Deal of the hardness of hearing results from changes in the middle ear. It is in this variety that hearing aids are perhaps of the greatest use. These acts by being attached to the bone near the ear so that the mechanism of the middle ear is to a certain extent short circuited and sounds are passed on more readily to the nerve carrying the message to the brain.

It should be obvious that a hearing aid will not be of value if the hearing difficulty is the result of damage to the nerve itself or of the reception process in the brain. Consequently, there are some who are deaf who will not benefit from a hearing aid.

I Do Not Know why Mrs. S. is made nervous by her hearing aid but perhaps it is one which does not suit her needs or is not adjusted to them as well as it might be. There are a number of good instruments of this kind on the market but none of them should be just picked out like a toothbrush. It is worth while to find the model best suited to the individual needs and be sure that it is properly adjusted to that person. Perhaps doing this would help Mrs. S. and would not make her so nervous.

I should like to add a word about occupations for those who are partly deaf but otherwise qualified and eager to work. There are many occupations where sharp hearing is not necessary. The fitting of a hard-of-hearing person into the proper job is a goal toward which all of us should strive. There are many public and private organizations which offer aid under such circumstances so that a person whose hearing is failing certainly should not give up hope of a useful as well as a comfortable life.

The Mature Parent

Real Boy-Girl Difference Is Power of Motherhood

BY MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Ruth's baby brother was six weeks old when she asked her first question about their sex difference. Her mother, calling John after his bath, answered:

But it soon became clear that Ruth was much more worried about her own sex difference than she was interested in her brother's. And one morning, again at his bath time, she asked a question to which her mother said shortly, "Because you're a girl, that's why."

The answer was a mistake. Ruth's mother sensed this at once. Looking up, she saw the worry on her little daughter's face harden into envy—and suddenly understood how she was feeling.

In the baby's naivete, Ruth was explaining his power to displace her as Mommy's No. 1 interest. He had dethroned her, not because he was little, but because he was male. It was his sex that entitled him to the lion's share of Mommy's attention, and why, oh, why did she have to be a little girl?

A wise woman, Ruth's mother corrected this dangerous misunderstanding which not only encouraged jealousy of the baby's sex but which could so easily develop into anxious, competitive resentment of all little boys.

As she placed her son in his crib, she said, "It's good to be girls like us, Ruthie. Do you know that every girl in the world has a special little cradle inside her for carrying babies in before they are born? I have one and so have you, a little one. John hasn't got any because he's a boy. But you have. The mean thing about it is, we can't see it so as soon as John's asleep, I'll draw you a picture of it."

In these situations, do we restore a little girl's pride in her femininity to make her feel good—or because it's justified?

The other day, my friend Stuart Cioete gave me an interesting answer. A novelist who has made magnificent fiction out of Africa's past, he has most recently authored "The African Giant," a best seller concerned with its turbulent present. In answer to a comment I made about it, he said, "No—Africa's problem is not politics, economics or race; it's barbaric mothers."

And went on: "You see, a barbaric mother's child can only be educated; not civilized. As civilized children can only be made by civilized mothers, we have to change Africa's women. Only mothers can teach Africa's men to understand and accept the social contract every civilized man has to make with his kind. Africa is a place that proves mothers are the most powerful people on earth."

HAWK, N. C.—The mountaineer is America's original do-it-yourself fan.

He had to be. If he couldn't do a thing for himself, there was no one else to do it for him.

The tradition that he can do anything he sets his mind to — all alone and by himself — is still bone-deep in the southern highlander, whose greatest pride is his rugged independence.

Such a man is Roby M. Buchanan, the self-taught Tiffany of the Hills. All alone and by himself he became the greatest jewel craftsman of the Blue Ridge Mountains. His gems are prized by collectors from New York City to India.

During the summer about 1,000 visitors a month come to his rude tar paper workshop shack — it's "20 miles up a dead-end road" — to watch Roby cut and polish the gem rocks he bulldozes himself out of the hills.

It is a matter of complete indifference to Roby whether they buy or not.

"I just like to have 'em come here and sit and talk while I work," said he. Roby has no trouble marketing the 500 to 600 rings, bracelets, pins and brooches he makes each year, all done by hand. He isn't interested in large-scale production.

"I'm not trying to run Tiffany or any body else out of business," he said. "What I do is different from what they do."

Roby, whose keen blue eyes at 51 outmatch the faded blue in his overalls, fell in love as a boy with "the pretty rocks" he found. There are about 350 varieties of stones and minerals in the mountains here.

"My father — and his father before him — was a mica miner," he said. "Often they'd bring home pretty pebbles they found in the mines, and I loved to study them."

Roby finished only the eighth grade in school. At 15 he ran away and lived three years in the West. Then the memories of his native mountains called him home to stay.

He got a job in a grist mill. Time often hung heavy on his hands, and he began studying "the pretty rocks" again — rough small chunks of sapphire, moonstone, amethyst, ruby, aquamarine, and 20 other kinds of gems.

In his mind's eye he could see the imprisoned beauty glowing deep within the rough stones, stones that had to be cut and patterned and polished to set that hidden beauty free. Roby made up his mind he had to learn the art of doing this or life wouldn't be right for him.

"I wrote away to 50 jewelers in big cities and asked that what to do," Roby recalled. "They wrote back that, considering where I was, I'd have to learn to do it on my own."

Roby did. He read every book he could find on the subject. He experienced with crude tools, home-made techniques. Now, after more than 30 stubborn years, he is recognized as a master lapidary.

He was paid $20 for the first gem he succeeded in cutting. Today he gets up to $2,300 for a brooch. Sometimes, when he turns out a fine stone that catches his own eye, he refuses to sell it at any price.

"I kind like to keep it around and look at it," he explained. He has built up a personal collection that would make the eyes of a Texas multimillionaire's wife bulge out in emerald envy.

"We are treating the story as a non-fiction movie," Dugan explained. "It will be made in documentary style, just as the book was written. In other words, we are not saying that it proves reincarnation or disproves it. Nor does Bernstein in the book.

"He merely presents it as an interesting phenomenon in hypothesis. And that's how we will show it in the picture."

In Hollywood

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — Bridgette Murphy comes to Hollywood.

Production begins today on the film version of "The Search for Bridgette Murphy." For the benefit of those who have just returned from overseas, I will explain about the Irish wail—or wraith.

A businessman named Morey Bernstein hypnotized a Pueblo, Colo., housewife who then told of another life she led in 19th century Ireland. He wrote up her testimony in a book which has caused some to say it proves reincarnation, others to claim it denotes nothing but an overworked imagination.

Veteran film man Pat Dugan is producing the film version of "The Search for Bridgette Murphy." "My wife is Libbie Block, a screen writer," he explained. "She comes from Denver, and she heard about Bridgette. She was the first to see the dramatic values at a time when Bernstein hadn't even thought of writing a book. She introduced him to the publisher."

"She also bought up the screen rights. This was in January a year ago. We sent the material around to the studios. They said 'What is it all about and who knows about anything like this?'"

Needless to say, the studios sang a different tune when the book became the talk of much of the country. The Dugans set a deal at Paramount. The project was kept under wraps until last week, when the studio announced the shooting date.

"We are treating the story as a non-fiction movie," Dugan explained. "It will be made in documentary style, just as the book was written. In other words, we are not saying that it proves reincarnation or disproves it. Nor does Bernstein in the book.

"He merely presents it as an interesting phenomenon in hypothesis. And that's how we will show it in the picture."

Legion Home Safe At Jerseyville Blown By Yeggs; $900 Stolen

JERSEYVILLE—Another chapter was added to the story of existing lawlessness and burglaries in the Jersey county area when yeggs blew the large safe at the American Legion Home near the northern city limits during the early hours of Sunday morning. The burglars escaped with loot totaling more than $900 in cash.

The burglary was the second, important one in the locality during the week. Burglars the early morning of Saturday obtained $7,440.00 in jewelry and watches from the display counters in the Anderson Jewelry Store on North Washington street.

Officials of Worthy Post American Legion reported that the Legion Home closed at 1 a.m. Sunday. The burglary was discovered Sunday morning by a member of the Legion Post here.

Theodore Beierman, who was the first at the scene, found the metal door of the Legion Home open. Investigation revealed that nitro glycerine had been used to blow the lock of the door and gain entrance into the place.

Further investigation revealed the main safe had been blown and a complete job had been accomplished by the dynamiters.

LINCOLN

The longest, lowest, most powerful Lincoln ever built

People who know fine cars are changing to Lincoln

More fine car buyers are changing to Lincoln this year than ever before in Lincoln's entire history—because they recognize that this longest, lowest, most powerful Lincoln of all time is unmistakably... the finest in the fine car field.

Naturally, most of these people are turning to Lincoln because of its fresh, trend-setting new styling. But after owning Lincoln, they praise this car's other fine qualities.

They tell us—time and time again—about Lincoln's exceptional handling ease. They're surprised that such a big, roomy car can be so effortless to drive—and that wives actually prefer this Lincoln over the family's smaller car.

They tell us about Lincoln's outstanding performance, too—in dozens of ways. Those who have never experienced Turbo-Drive are astonished to find that an automatic transmission can be so smooth... and those who take long trips say that this Lincoln makes the ride seem so much shorter.

And they tell us about roadability. They like the way Lincoln rides so firmly through a curve—and the freedom of taking any road they choose... instead of avoiding the bad ones.

If you've been thinking this is your kind of fine car, stop in and see us. We'll put a new Lincoln at your disposal any time you say.

Mayor Of Harlan, Ky. Wears Overalls But He's Cut Taxes, Freed City Of Debt

By VANCE JOHNSTON
HARLAN, Ky.—Mayor Ros-cow Petrey's attire and actions might raise eyebrows in some cities. But here they love him.

Beau Brummel would faint at the sight of Petrey going to a City Council meeting.

He wears bib overalls!
What's more it's not uncommon to spot him manning a shovel with city maintenance crews.

Why does the city love this 65-year-old bachelor who neither drinks, smokes nor chews? Well, and this could be a shocker for some of his pin-striped contemporaries, he has:

Reduced taxes.
Rid the city of debt.
Built up a sizeable reserve fund.
His secret? Petrey thinks it's simple! "We don't buy anything we can't pay for."

For his working day usually runs 12 to 14 hours, the salty former coal miner is paid $5 monthly. This he turns over to the city library for new books.

One thing bothers Petrey—the reputation Harlan was tagged with in the '30s during bloody fighting over labor organization of coal miners. Bloody Harlan—a name this eastern Kentucky city has found hard to shake.

"I'm sick and tired of people thinking we're all a bunch of thugs and gunmen," Petrey said. "I've lived here for 35 years and not a bullet hole to show for 'em."

When Petrey took over two years ago the city owed more than $16,000. The tax rate, when the bills were paid, was reduced 10 cents on each $100 of taxable property. Currently there is more than $60,000 in the general fund plus $16,380 in the sinking fund.
While taking the city out of the red and accumulating a surplus, 28 streets were paved, 2,000 feet of concrete sidewalks were laid and a new $3,000 fire truck was purchased.

Petrey begins his day around 7 in the morning and can be seen around city hall as late as midnight.
Born on a farm in nearby
Whitely County, he came here as a coal miner. Today he owns considerable real estate.

Petrey has hopes of someday losing his bachelor status.

"There are two or three I could be interested in," he said — and with confidence adds, "They'll wait."

He takes pride in reporting that crime has fallen off and says this can be attributed to his alert police force.
Juvenile delinquency in his town is no problem, he adds.

Real Hustler Resigns As Newspaper Carrier

RICHARD ADAMS

Jerry Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Adams, 1420 South Main street, who will graduate from Jacksonville high school with the class of '56 has resigned his position as newspaper carrier for the Jacksonville Journal Courier and will take a position in the engineering department of the State of Illinois, leaving Richard to carry on the reputation as hustlers, that these brothers have built up.

Jerry is one of the best carriers the local newspaper has ever employed. He has been carrying a route in South Jacksonville for more than five years, starting his duties Dec. 10, 1951. He gave up the route this month.

Jerry has had the backing, and even the active assistance, of his parents who believe that routes are the best kind of work for any school-boy because they develop such good points of character as initiative, a sense of responsibility and thrift. Because he sells his services to people outside his family, who judge him in an unbiased way, a boy's personality is improved. He also learns poise and gains maturity as he adjusts to the varied personalities of his many customers.

That Jerry benefited by his parents' backing, and made full use of his own sense of responsibility is shown by the fact that when Jerry took over the route in 1951 he had 125 customers (a load already over the usual number of about 100). By hard work he increased the number of subscribers to 245 which he has retained.

Misses Only One Day

He gave his customers fine service and only missed one day from his duties. That was when the Journal Courier company took a group of carriers to Champaign to witness a football game at the University of Illinois.

After working with the state highway department this summer, Jerry intends to enroll this fall in either Purdue University or Georgia Tech where he plans to study either civil or electrical engineering.

Jerry has earned and saved several hundred dollars through the years and will be able to pay part of his expenses while attending college.

The South Jacksonville boy told this reporter that during the five and one-half years of his newspaper carrier he only purchased one bicycle. Although he wore out several sets of tires, he made all repairs on his bike himself and believes that when he ended his route-carrying the bike had practically been rebuilt.

Richard Also Hustler

There is another member of the Adams family that is employed as a carrier by the Jacksonville Journal Courier. He is Richard Adams who also is a hustler. Richard also carries the Evening Courier in South Jacksonville and has done so since Nov. 10, 1952.

When Richard took over the route there were 130 subscribers. He started working and it was not long before he was throwing 254 Couriers each evening.

Richard also has a fine record as a carrier and hopes to continue his paper route until he graduates and enters college. He also plans to save some money to help in his college education when he finishes school in Jacksonville.

CLOVER CHARM FAILS

SANDSTON, Va. (AP)—Mrs. W. R. Pritchett found 16 four-leaf clovers, five six-leaf and two five-leaf on her lawn which should have brought enough luck for one day. They didn't, though. After her clover gathering Mrs. Pritchett began her housework and promptly fell through a first floor window she was washing into a prize tulip bed. Main damage was to her belief that multi-leaf clovers have anything to do with good luck.

BOOK COMES BACK

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Martha Freedman finally got her book back after 21 years. She bought a copy of Dashiell Hammett's "omnibus" at a local book store. Upon opening the book, she discovered her name and the date 1935 on the flyleaf.

DISARMAMENT LAW

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.

Written for NEA Service

The advertisements advise us to pay our bills by check. This method of clearing our indebtedness is so much simpler than running around to our creditors and paying with cash. We cannot readily be robbed of our bank accounts. Thieves who take chances which almost always result in their being caught. All of this is true. However, there is another interesting feature in this paying by check. There have to be some deposits in the bank to make the checks good. We are all very careful not to pass "rubber checks." We are basically honest in America.

In the realm of spiritual values we call on God every now and then asking to have a blank check cashed. We want help and we have not deposited much in the bank of Godly values. It is so easy to take, but not to give.

For one good deed which we have done we would like to have several benefits in return. For one little prayer we want mountains to be moved. For a token contribution we want a great deal of recognition. It is well for us to balance our spiritual checkbooks every now and then. We may find we are indebted to God and that we should be investing more of ourselves in the work of His kingdom—not more money only but more of our minds and souls.

Blood Donors, Volunteer Help And Food Needed

BLOODMOBILE MAY 24-25

Volunteers are needed for just about everything Thursday and Friday, May 24 and 25, when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visits Morgan county. The quota for the two day visit is 175 for each day for a total of 350 pints of blood.

In addition to donors the local chapter needs sandwich spread to prepare sandwiches served to donors after giving blood. At the last visit of the unit to Morgan county the response for sandwich spread was good.

Any variety spread is acceptable in pints, or larger containers. Since the second day of the visit is Friday, cheese, tuna, cheese-salad, egg salad spreads, etc. are most welcome. Those individuals or business firms wishing to help in this endeavor are asked to phone this service at Chestnut 5-6749 by Wednesday, May 23.

The Blood Mobile has not visited Jacksonville since last February and that means that anyone who gave blood in February is well able to give again now.

The county has had one visit since that time when the unit was in Merceda in April.

Donors, anyone from 18 to 60 years, are asked to please phone the Red Cross office and make a definite appointment for either day. The unit will be stationed at the Grace Methodist church in the basement from 12 noon to 6 p. m. each day.

Young men 18 to 21 must have written permission before giving blood. This can be from either parent or a guardian.

Because of exams and closing school activities the Junior Red Cross at the Jacksonville high school will not be able to furnish transportation as they have in the past nor provide baby sitting service.

Mrs. Wilbur Kurtz, in charge of staff aides, is recruiting typists, clerks, etc. to assist with the many duties necessary during the visiting hours. Anyone wishing to help is asked to contact the Red Cross office.

The Gray Lady service offered during the visits of the Bloodmobile is being supervised by Mrs. Wilford Queen. Mrs. James Dunlap contacts the nurses who give of their time in pre-donor examination and other duties and Dr. Hugh McKinley is in charge of physicians who also donate their time and service during the two day visit of the Bloodmobile.

Mrs. Alma Moltenbrock contacts all nurse aides for the many duties necessary during the visit such as taking the temperatures of the donors, serving fruit juices and crackers prior to medical check-ups, serving as hostesses at the refreshment tables after giving of blood, etc. Miss Nellie Doying is the canteen chairman and is responsible for providing the many sandwiches served to donors along with milk, coffee or Coca-Cola after giving blood.

Members of the Jacksonville Rotary club have offered their help in unloading the heavy equipment before the unit's visit and re-loading Friday night after the processing. This is a most necessary service and must be done through volunteer help as the St. Louis office does not have enough people to send to Jacksonville for these services.

Burglars Loot Jewelry Store At Jerseyville

JERSEYVILLE — Representatives from the state bureau of criminal identification and investigation were here Saturday from Springfield to aid in the investigation of a jewel robbery Friday night at the Anderson jewelry store on N. Washington street.

Jewelry and watches valued at $7440 were obtained by the burglars during their night raid on the place. The robbery was similar in some respects to the one staged earlier in the week at a jewelry store in Wood River, when more than $10,000 in loot was obtained.

The store robbed here is owned by L. L. Anderson, of Jerseyville and the robbery was discovered when the place was opened for business Saturday morning.

The burglars gained entrance through a rear door. Before breaking the glass, they taped it to deaden the noise of breaking and falling glass.

A ransom for the jewelry was paid about 1 a. m. Saturday, and local officers believe the robbery occurred before the storm struck, since there were no tracks visible in the earth in the vicinity of the rear door of the building.

Harry Grayson's SCOREBOARD

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA) — Sam Breadon was asked what, in his opinion, was the most unusual thing about baseball.

"All these people coming out here day after day," replied the man, who with Branch Rickey, built the Cardinals empire.

Another thing that puzzled Breadon and makes a lot of other people wonder is how fans form such a strong allegiance to a club or individual player.

The great bulk of the noble athletes have no connection with the city they represent. Mightily few reside where they perform.

They don't represent those who pay to see them. They represent themselves and a business organization.

That is the principal reason why they are shuffled about in such a callous way.

Sal Maglie winding up in Brooklyn, for example, further destroys the illusion that baseball is not a business. The Barber was the most distinctive Giant, as much a part of the Polo Grounds as Cogan's Bluff. Yet the minute he lost his guile, Horace Stoneham peddled the dark-visaged right-hander to the Indians, who in turn dealt him to the Dodgers.

FLATBUSH, YOU SEE, had more use for Maglie's waning talent.

There is little sentiment on the playing side of organized baseball.

Asked if he really hated the Brooks while he held them under his spell, Maglie replied: "When I pitched for Cienfuegos in Cuba, I hated Havana. When I pitched in Mexico, I hated Mexico City. When I pitched independent ball in Canada, I hated the other side. When I pitched for Cleveland, I hated the Yankees.

"Sure, I hated the Dodgers, and now I'll have to develop new hates."

Asked if he deliberately threw at a batter's head, Maglie said: "Let's say I crowded batters back. When they crowd the plate and take a toe hold, you've got to crowd them back or they'll crowd you out of the box. Let's call crowding the batter back a tactical pitch, for that is what it is."

IT IS CONTRARY to sound business sense, but you'd think that owners would make some attempt to have old-timers play out the string at their original base.

After all, they insist that their racket is a sport and not a business.

A fellow like Maglie, so emblematic of a club and park, at least should be permitted to make a deal for himself when nearing the end of the line. Any other business firm feels that it owes an employee something after long and faithful service.

Such a famous figure as Babe Ruth, who built Yankee Stadium, closed his career miserably with the Boston Braves and as a coach with the Dodgers.

Such a tough customer as Enochs Slaughter broke down and cried when traded to the Yankees after 16 illustrious years with the Cardinals.

Country Slaughter never dreamt of playing with another club, but suddenly found himself living in a dream world.

That's where the baseball fan lives, by the way — in a dream world.

Mantle's Out Of The Park Home Run Gives Yankees 8-5 Victory

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics won the home run derby but lost the ball game 8-5 to the New York Yankees Monday on Mickey Mantle's tremendous homer over two fences, up a 40-foot embankment and out of the park.

The A's hit four home runs, two of them by Harry Simpson, and all with the bases empty. Hector Lopez and Gus Zernial hit double-header circuit smashes to lead off the third inning. Simpson hit his to lead off the second and eighth innings.

Mantle's gargantuan clout came in the fifth, also with the bases empty, and after the A's had handed the Yanks five runs in the first inning, four of them unearned.

The game was further enlivened by a near free-for-all when Billy Martin charged off the bench to do fistie battle with relief pitcher Tom Lasorda in the ninth.

Robinson Thinks Olson Is Through As A Topnotcher

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Bobo Olson may never be the same fighter, the man who defeated him last week commented Monday.

"There will be fear running through his mind whenever he steps into the ring," welterweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson said. Olson, he added, "is probably through as a topnotcher."

Interviewer Sid Ziff of the Los Angeles Mirror-News asked the champ about his plans.

"I'm fed up with fighting for a while. I've been in training ever since December. I need a break, and I simply won't start thinking of opponents."

That brought up another point. "I never had any bad beatings nor did I ever take any severe punishment. I never abused my body," he went on.

"Although certainly not the fighter I was five years ago, I haven't the least doubt of my ability to go 15 rounds today."

The best years of a fighter's life, Robinson conceded, are between 25 and 30.

Does Olson have a glass jaw? Robby doesn't think so. "The punch I hit him with Friday night would have finished anyone."

PCC Conference Overrules UCLA's Football Ban

VICTORIA, B. C. (AP)—The faculty representative of UCLA declared all members of the school's 1955 freshman and varsity football squads ineligible Monday, but the Pacific Coast Conference ruled the penalty too harsh and reinstated the entire group.

The effect of the conference action is to cost all of the players one year of eligibility—but not necessarily in the 1956 season.

The conference stipulated that any football player who received "substantial financial aid not permitted" by its athletic code shall be charged with one year of varsity football participation.

It was explained that Dr. Joseph Kaplan, UCLA's official conference representative, had no authority to place a time limit on the ineligibility. When he advised the conference of his action he could only say that he had declared the men ineligible.

Only Saturday the conference had placed UCLA on probation for three years for giving unauthorized financial aid to athletes. The school also was fined $15,000 because its chancellor refused to cooperate with the conference commissioner.

Fans Will Pick All-Star Team Again This Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick announced Monday his office will conduct the All Star Game poll in cooperation with Canadian and American newspapers, radio stations and television stations.

Alread approximately 500 newspapers and stations have indicated willingness to conduct local polls and forward the results to Frick's office.

In recent years the Chicago Tribune has served as the central counting bureau for the poll. The Tribune withdrew this spring.

Frick said the voting will open Friday, June 1, and close at the local level at midnight, Friday, June 2. Final tabulations must be received in the commissioner's office by midnight of June 26, and the results will be announced shortly thereafter.

The game is July 10 in Washington. The fans will select the starting teams for both leagues except for the pitchers, who will be chosen by the managers along with the balance of the two squads.

By tradition, the previous year's World Series managers serve as managers for the league teams—in this case Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees for the American League, and Walt Alston of the Brooklyn Dodgers for the National League.

Frick said the poll is "open to any newspaper and radio and television stations who may care to participate."

GENE WOODLING EXPECTS TO SEE ACTION IN 2 WEEKS

FAIR LAWN, N. J. (AP)—Outfielder Gene Woodling of the Cleveland Indians, back home after a series of hospital tests, said Monday that he's feeling fine and expects to return to baseball in about two weeks.

Woodling entered a Newark hospital 11 days ago after undergoing a series of dizzy spells he said hampered his playing.

Tests eliminated the theory that he had diabetes and, Woodling said, indicated that fluctuations in blood pressure brought on the spells. He was given medication to relieve them.

Cleveland's Al Rosen missed triple-crown fame by a percentage point in 1955 according to the current issue of The Packard Sports Library. The Indians' third baseman won the home run title with 43 and the runs-batted-in lead with 145. But Washington's Mickey Vernon was the batting champion with a .337 average as compared to Rosen's .336.

Rip Repulski Leads NL Hitters With .412 Mark; Mantle Paces AL

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a familiar name among the American League leading batsmen: Rip Repulski.

Figures include games through Sunday.

Vernon, now in his 14th season in the majors, won his first batting crown in 1946 and captured the title again in 1952.

Repulski holds a 14-point advantage over runnerup Dale Long of Pittsburgh, who is hitting .398. Milwaukee's Bill Bruton is third at .394.

Mantle, with four homers last week, continues to head the AL in that department with 15, while teammate Yogi Berra has batted in the most runs, 34. The senior circuit in home runs with 11 and Long has taken over the RBI lead with 29.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Assembly Speaker Mark S. Catlin Jr., will "expose" what was called the political smear against him in a speech Wednesday before Milwaukee delegates to the Republican state convention.

Notice of the speech was mailed to Milwaukee delegates Monday by the Catlin for U. S. Senate Committee. No name was signed to it.

Catlin, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator, was charged by the State Board of Bar Examiners last week with unethical conduct.

The complaint filed with the Wisconsin Supreme Court alleged that Catlin took money for political influence to try to win the release of inmates from the Waupun State Prison. Catlin has denied the charge.

BLAME WEATHER FOR SUICIDE RECORD

VIENNA (AP)—A leading Austrian psychologist Monday blamed the abnormality of cool and rainy weather for a record number of suicides in Vienna over the past 10 days.

Eleven persons took their lives here in 24 hours.

Dr. Hans Hoff, Vienna University professor, explained that sudden changes in the weather, especially rain, low temperatures, and increased nervousness and mental depression among sensitive persons.

This, he said, added to the fact that people felt cheated when their holiday was rained out doubtless led some to end their lives.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico (AP)—A woman who won $11,800.00 on a $2 horse-racing bet Sunday said: "It was pure luck."

Mrs. G. W. Winterscheidt, wife of a Palm City, Calif., Navy civilian employee, said she picked five horses to win in six races just by their names and without other information about them.

She held the only winning ticket on the 5-10 pool, which pays off to the bettor or bettors picking the most winners in the fifth through tenth races. She collected the entire pool, less the track's 10 per cent.

CHICAGO WOMAN DIES IN CAR WRECK AT PEOTONE

Mrs. Josephine McGuire, 58, of Chicago, was thrown from the back seat of a car driven by her husband, John, 60, when it missed a curve and sideswiped a tree.

The McGuires were returning to Chicago from Newton, Ill. Mrs. McGuire will be buried in Newtor.

Unemployment for Americans is lowest between ages 35 and 44.

Big 10 Coaches Vote For 9-Game Round-Robin

By JERRY LISKA

GRAND RAPIDS, Minn. (AP)—Big Ten football coaches and athletic directors Monday voted for a 9-game round-robin conference schedule within a 10-game slate beginning in 1959-60, but the action awaits approval of the policy-making faculty representative later this week.

This departure from the present nine-game Big Ten grid schedule which includes a range of from six to eight conference games, came on a proposal by George H. Young, faculty representative from the University of Wisconsin.

Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson said the vote was not unanimous, but said that with all the football coaches and athletic directors voting there was a total of 20 votes, which meant there was at least an 11-9 majority for the expanded schedule.

The faculty representatives will act on the round-robin slate in their business session at Minneapolis Friday and Saturday, but even if they approve it, the matter must be reviewed by the individual member schools as new legislation and no final action probably would be taken before the winter meetings next December.

Betha Outpoints Ezzard Charles In 10-Round Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—Wayne Betha gave Ezzard Charles a big push toward the end of the boxing trail Monday night by decisively outpointing the slowed up, former heavyweight champion in a telecast 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. Charles weighed 195, Betha 199.

All three officials, referee Al Berl and judges Nick Gamboli and Mike Davidowitz, had the same scorecards, 7-3 for Betha. The AP had Betha in front 6-3-1.

The 34-year-old Charles almost pulled the fight out of the fire late in the last round when he staggered his 24-year-old rival with a long, overhand right to the jaw, and followed with a good left hook to the jaw but he couldn't drop Betha and time ran out.

Frank Lane Names 5 Untouchables On Cardinal Club

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Lane, the trading man in baseball, named five St. Louis Cardinals Monday who are untouchable: Stan Musial, Ken Boyer, Wally Moon, Red Schoendienst and Rip Repulski.

By implication the rest of the team is available for dealing. Lane, general manager of the Cardinals, was obviously on the defensive after his latest transaction which sent his young star, Bill Virdon, to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

St. Louis has raised a storm of criticism.

Speaking to the Sports Broadcasters Assn., Lane called the deal a "calculated risk."

"Quite obviously you make a deal to help your club," he said. "Nobody can tell how a deal turns out until after you play a lot of games."

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox Monday obtained pitcher Jim Wilson and outfielder Dave Philley from the Baltimore Orioles in exchange for four players, including veteran third baseman George Kell.

Pitcher Mike Fornieles, outfielder Bob Nieman and a player to be named later went with Kell in the package deal with Baltimore.

Wilson, 34, was the key man in the trade—one of the biggest of the season. The right-hander had 12-18 for the Orioles last year with an earned run average of 3.45. This season he has a 4-2 mark, including 31 strikeouts in 48 1/3 innings.

"We needed a fifth starter to go along with Billy Pierce, Jack Harshman, Dick Donovan and Bob Keegan," said Sox manager Marty Marion. "And we got him in Wilson."

Marion said Sam Esposito has developed so well he can play third base, where the aging Kell had been stationed when he was able to play.

Kell, 33, hit .312 in 128 games for the Sox last year and drove in 81 runs. In 21 games this season he hit .313.

Philley, who was 36 last week, returns to the Comiskey after serving them from 1946-1951. He is hitting .205 in 117 times at bat and has driven in 17 runs.

Fornieles, a 155-pound right hander, has a 6-1 mark for the campaign. Nieman is hitting .300 in 40 trips to the plate.

New York Stock Market

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (U)—A dull stock market session Monday dragged prices down again, this time in the steepest decline since last Monday.

Leading issues lost around $1 to $3 but some stocks stretched losses considerably beyond that.

The retreat was general, affecting all major divisions of the market, but there was nothing dramatic about it.

Volume was at a comparative low 1,940,000 shares compared with 2,020,000 Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped $1.80 to $183.50, with the industrials down $2.40, the rails $2.50 and the utilities 10 cents.

The drop in the average represented an estimated loss of about two billion dollars in the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The session started on an irregular note although mail order stocks and airlines showed a trend to the upside. Soon even this bit of firmness wilted, however. By afternoon fractional losses had extended themselves to $1 or $3 in some cases and trading was faster. Then prices improved above their worst and activity slowed to the unexciting pace that prevailed until the close.

Analysts ascribed the retreat to a further technical reaction while the market still digested unfavorable news of last week and tested its low points in the averages for either a sharper decline or a rebound.

The steel and rails division were lower from the start. Most of the losses in steels were a point or so. On the American Stock Exchange the same downward prevailed. Trading volume totaled 750,000 shares compared with 790,000 Friday.

CHICAGO (U)—With closing out of May contracts attracting most attention, grains finished irregular on the Board of Trade Monday.

There was heavy liquidation in May wheat and its final price was down 4 1/2 to 6 1/2 cents and at the day's low. The new crop month ended early but rallied to finish 1/2 to 3/4 higher.

In May soybeans the final price was 1 1/2 lower to 3 1/2 higher with the top figure for the day being made in the closing minutes. July soybeans, an old crop month, ended down while new crop month ended up.

Among other grains the major firework developed in May oats. They were down 2 1/2 to 2 3/4, which is a steep decline for this cereal. The break influenced other months, which ended 1/4 to 1 1/4 lower.

May rye and May corn ended a little higher. Other corn futures finished 1/2 lower to 1 1/2 higher while other rye futures were unchanged to 1/2 higher.

Best performance of the day was turned in by new crop December and March corn, which gained more than a cent and ended at the day's highs.

In the spot market both cash bean oil and meal sold lower, a bearish influence on old crop soybeans. Corn and oats also were lower in the spot market.

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK (U)—Ralls and quality investment issues shaded off to hit the bond market lower Monday. Volume contracted to $3,500,000 par value from $4,240,000 Friday.

U. S. government bonds, after being on the downside most of the day, staged a mild rally to come up to Friday's close.

NEW YORK (U)—A dull stock market session Monday dragged prices down again, this time in the steepest decline since last Monday.

Leading issues lost around $1 to $3 but some stocks stretched losses considerably beyond that.

The retreat was general, affecting all major divisions of the market, but there was nothing dramatic about it.

Volume was at a comparative low 1,940,000 shares compared with 2,020,000 Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped $1.80 to $183.50, with the industrials down $2.40, the rails $2.50 and the utilities 10 cents.

The drop in the average represented an estimated loss of about two billion dollars in the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

The session started on an irregular note although mail order stocks and airlines showed a trend to the upside. Soon even this bit of firmness wilted, however. By afternoon fractional losses had extended themselves to $1 or $3 in some cases and trading was faster. Then prices improved above their worst and activity slowed to the unexciting pace that prevailed until the close.

Analysts ascribed the retreat to a further technical reaction while the market still digested unfavorable news of last week and tested its low points in the averages for either a sharper decline or a rebound.

The steel and rails division were lower from the start. Most of the losses in steels were a point or so. On the American Stock Exchange the same downward prevailed. Trading volume totaled 750,000 shares compared with 790,000 Friday.

The decision overturned a ruling by the Nebraska Supreme Court that the state's "right to work" law superseded the Railway Labor Act's union shop amendment.

The Nebraska court ruled in a case brought by a group of Union Pacific Railroad employees who did not want to have to join a union. The decision was appealed by 16 nonoperating labor organizations which have negotiated union shop agreements with the Union Pacific.

Chandlerville

CHANDLERVILLE—Mrs. Estelle Reavis was hostess at her home Tuesday evening to members of her Congregational Church Sunday school class. She served a chicken pie supper at 7 p.m. A short business meeting followed the supper, and plans were made for the rummage sale May 19.

Mrs. Elmer Lynn, Mrs. Wilbur Fritchett and Mrs. Paul H. Abbott won prizes in games played later.

Army specialist third class Donald R. Dirk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Dirk of R.R. 1, Chandlerville, recently received the good conduct medal at Fort Richardson, Alaska, where he is serving with the post ordnance company. A 1954 graduate of Chandlerville High School, Dirks entered the Army in June, 1954, and took basic training at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

Robert Cowan of Bath, Ill., is the new representative in this area of the Rockford Life Insurance Co. He replaces James A. Cook of Chandlerville, who resigned to devote his full time to the ministry. Cook, a graduate of the local high school and of the Lincoln Bible Institute, has been engaged in the ministry for the past three years. He now has charge of the Christian Church in Rushville.

City policeman Arthur King is a patient at Schmitt Memorial Hospital in Beardstown.

Mrs. Gene Clark of Normandy, Mo., is here visiting her sister, Mrs. and Mrs. Rufus Spires. Mrs. Spires entered Our Saviour's Hospital Sunday.

Cecil King has returned to Chandlerville for the summer to work for Maurice Trowbridge, local contractor. King spent the winter in Girard, Ill.

Harry Dearing is a patient at Our Saviour's Hospital in Jacksonville.

Mrs. Alma Cherry returned home Thursday after a four-day stay in Our Saviour's hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Leslie of Canton were Wednesday visitors of Watson Trowbridge.

Larry Aney is now employed by National Van Lines and is currently at Washington. He has completed two weeks of schooling, and his trips originate in Chicago.

Stengel Carries Race For Senate To Supermarket

CHICAGO (U)—Richard Stengel, Illinois Democratic candidate for U. S. senator, began what he said will be a marathon campaign by going to the supermarkets Monday.

Housewives out for marketing shook hands with the nominee and listened to him make speeches at three West Side shopping centers.

He criticized his opponent, Republican Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, for supporting the bill to remove federal restrictions on natural gas producers. The bill was passed by Congress but vetoed by President Eisenhower.

Stengel said the bill "would cost each gas consumer family $30 per year as a minimum."

Stengel said he plans to do a lot of talking to shoppers during the campaign which, he said, will be waged daily from now until the Nov. 6 election, with time out while he attends the Democratic national convention in August.

Top Brass Play Down Squabble In Armed Services

WASHINGTON (U)—The Pentagon's top brass played down the "eager beaver" squabbling Monday a sudden upsurge of Army-Navy-Air Force rivalry over national defense policy.

It didn't look, however, as if any serious punishment was in store for relatively junior officers who stirred up the weekend fuss.

Secretary of Defense Wilson took the "little hurricane," as he called it, so seriously that he called on short notice an unprecedented news conference by himself, the secretaries of all three services and all members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

"There will always be some differences of opinion within and between the services in connection with military operations," declared Wilson, as the civilian and military heads of the armed forces sat stony-faced alongside him. He added:

"Honest differences and reasonable competition between the military services are healthy and will result in a stronger defense establishment."

"It is not good for the country, however, to have these differences, some of which are set forth in confidential staff papers, aired on a basis of service partisanship without giving the proper responsible officials the opportunity to weigh all the factors involved."

Wilson thus moved swiftly to halt the biggest interservice quarrel by far since the "admirals" over the B36 bomber in 1949.

Army Moves In To Help Battle Floods In Idaho

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (U)—The Army arrived Monday with 500 troops and heavy equipment to help battle the bulging Kootenai River which reached a record level, flooded 1,000 acres and threatened 39,000 more.

A convoy of infantrymen and engineers pulled in after a 350-mile trip from Ft. Lewis, Wash., and the soldiers went to work quickly to strengthen earthen dikes against the river. Seepage was feared. It can weaken dikes beyond repair.

A 12-inch water pipe which carries domestic water to town was broken when an outlying section of dikes gave way. Drinking water in the downtown area was cut off, and two reservoirs in town were running dry.

Some residents filled big cans full of water and others built up their supply from nearby springs. The city had welders on the job all day to fix the break. All schools are closed for the summer.

Sixteen separate "diking districts" protect the 40,000 acres of rich wheatland in the Kootenai Valley and this north Idaho town of 2,000 persons. A spring heat wave that melted heavy mountain snow brought on the flood.

The Kootenai reached a peak of 35.4 feet early Monday, the highest ever recorded here. The previous high was 35.38 on May 23, 1954. Flood stage is listed at 31 feet.

Gov. Robert E. Smylie declared a state of emergency here Sunday.

Dikes around town are built up to 37 feet. Dikes around the farming areas are 35 to 37 feet high.

The Kootenai fell to 33.9 this afternoon as water rushed through the broken dikes, but it began to rise again and the Weather Bureau forecast a peak of 35 to 36 feet for the next three days.

Phone Fire Alarm

HAILEY, Idaho (U)—When a mysterious busy signal kept coming from the Hailey fire station, a telephone operator, Mae Plummer, notified night marshal Steve Rohay, who checked the home, then called the fire department in time to put out a blaze.

Parking Charge

ORLANDO Fla. (U)—Motorists won't be able to tell police officers they don't have any change for parking meters. Officers are being supplied with nickels to make change for drivers who need it.

Home Garden Melons Need Lots of Food, Water

It is a proud home gardener who can feast his friends on sweet muskmelons or water melons grown in his own garden. Melons and squash are usually the last vegetables sown in the spring, as they require warm weather from start to finish.

A light, well drained soil, lots of water and more plant food than you are accustomed to use on other vegetables pay off especially well with the melons. The vines of squash and muskmelons can be grown as climbers, provided large fruits are supported. A mesh bag such as often used for fruits in supermarkets provides a good support for melons the time required from seed sowing to maturity will determine the variety you sow. Muskmelons take from 80 to 100 days, watermelons from 75 to 100 days. Seed cannot be sown until at least a week after the last frost.

With melons the time required from seed sowing to maturity will determine the variety you sow. Muskmelons take from 80 to 100 days, watermelons from 75 to 100 days. Seed cannot be sown until at least a week after the last frost.

Heavy fertilizing pays well. As much as a pint of fertilizer, mixed with water, should be applied to the soil beneath each hill several days before the seed is planted. Or use a shovel of well rotted manure, and half a pint of plant food. Sow ten seeds to the hill and thin out to the two strongest plants that develop.

Do not harvest watermelons or muskmelons until they are ripe, as they improve in flavor very little after they are picked. It takes some study to determine when a watermelon is ripe, with out "plugging" it. Thumping is one test, ripe melons giving a dead flat sound, green ones a ringing sound. The color of the spot where the melon lay on the ground usually changes from greenish white to yellow as it ripens.

A muskmelon is ripe when it parts from the vine with a gentle pull, and the characteristic odor of a ripe melon is noticeable. When ripe melons are not sweet, a lack of sunshine during the growing season is usually at fault. Cool, wet summer weather is not what the melons need; but hot, dry weather with lots of water supplied by the gardener.

Squash are not so demanding as melons, though some are just as sweet. Italian marrows, which produce mature fruits weighing pounds, are delicious when a few days old. You can select your squash from many different types, some maturing in 60 days and others 100 days. Many are splid winter keepers, and sweeter than melons when properly cooked.

THE LONG BODY

by Helen McCloy

XXXVI

"ALICE HAZARD was a threat to all Cristina's schemes," Basil Willing told Byrd Cushing. "Cristina was afraid Alice would stumble on the truth at any moment and bring the whole thing into the open. If she did, it would be impossible for Cristina to blackmail you. The real thing that threw you open to blackmail was your desire to keep your wife and daughter and Alice and Malcolm from hearing Cristina's charge of murder against you and John."

"Cristina couldn't resist trying to run down Alice with a car, hoping to kill her. Alice had told her in their first interview that the Hazards were dining with the Cushings that night and Cristina learned from Malcolm, when he stopped at her cottage on his way to the Cushings, that the Hazards were on foot. Cristina did not hesitate to leave her father alone in the house for such a purpose. For once Alice was dead, Cristina would be able to put as much pressure on you as she liked without anyone but you having the slightest suspicion of what was going on."

"And then came the real turn of the screw, the final twist that broke you. For Alice, already intensely suspicious of Cristina, saw Cristina's face through the windshield of the car that nearly ran her down and knew that Cristina wanted to kill her and perhaps Malcolm as well, since he was with his mother at the time. The police paid little attention to Alice's fantastic story. In a state of shock, under the influence of drugs, she babbled about killing Cristina herself."

"Even this would not have roused you, but for one thing: you knew Alice was a sleepwalker. You knew that in her normal, waking state she was morally incapable of killing anyone, even Cristina, whom she feared so much. But how could you tell what Alice would do in a sleepwalking state? Were you to stand by and let John's widow commit murder?"

"You had to kill Cristina yourself, before Alice did so. You deliberately took the burden of danger and guilt on yourself, so that Alice would not take it on herself. You became a murderer to keep Alice from becoming a murderer."

"Naturally you chose the one night when you were sure Alice herself could not possibly be involved in any way, because she would have no chance to make the attempt, when she was safely in the hospital, sleeping under sedatives and carefully guarded by nurses and doctors. You even made an anonymous phone call that night to let the police know Cristina was dead so the murder would be discovered while Alice had a perfect alibi. But you made a mistake when you assumed that physical weakness or hospital regulations and drugs would keep a woman like Alice from doing something to protect her son from a woman like Cristina."

"You followed the details of Alice's own plan for killing Cristina because it seemed to you a sensible plan and you yourself were temperamentally incapable of planning a murder in cold-blooded detail."

"YOU were Cristina's nearest neighbor, so when you heard police sirens and saw lights at Cristina's cottage in the valley below your hilltop house, it was natural to walk over and ask what the emergency was, what you could do to help. What a shock it must have been when you saw Alice Hazard's handbag" on the table in Cristina's living room, the handbag you knew she had with her in the hospital earlier that evening.

"But you didn't lose your quickness and boldness even then. You pocketed the handbag before the police noticed it and returned it to Alice's home as soon as you could. Alice, puzzled, felt then as if some malicious intelligence was manipulating everything around her. She had no idea that it was more simply the protecting vigilance of love and loyalty."

"Then," said Byrd slowly, "there's nothing to connect me with Cristina's death except motive and that isn't evidence, is it?"

"No," Basil answered quietly. "But if you turn all this over to the police, as I suppose you'll have to, and they start looking in my direction, it's quite possible they'll dig up some physical evidence."

"Quite possible, even probable," Byrd smiled. "Well, this has been an interesting conversation." He rose. "Thanks, Dr. Willing. And goodbye."

South Jacksonville Asks Conference On New Water Contract

Although the expiration date of a contract for water and sewer service between Jacksonville and the village of South Jacksonville is more than three years distant, a conference between committees of the two municipalities may be held in the near future to discuss the probable renewal of the contract.

A letter from Otis Axe, president of the South Jacksonville board of trustees, was read at last night's council session, stating that the village desires such a conference and suggesting that the water and sewer committees of both the city and village schedule a meeting.

"While the expiration date is still some time in the future, because of the importance of this agreement to the welfare of both communities and their citizens, we believe it would be of mutual benefit for both municipalities if preliminary discussions would be held as soon as conveniently possible, so that there will be ample time to consider the terms of the new agreement," Axe said in his letter.

To Start Rate Study

Mayor Hoagland ordered the letter placed on file. Both the mayor and Alderman Rowe, chairman of the water committee, said a study of rates in comparable situations should be started, with a view of considering the new contract.

The City of Jacksonville has always furnished the village with water and sewer service under contract. The present agreement will expire July 1, 1959.

Submitting the monthly report of the water department, Alderman Rowe said consumption and receipts are climbing. He said that a determined effort will be made by the department to collect delinquent accounts, which have jumped from $1,500 in March, 1955, to about $2,400 at present.

Award Wrecking Contract

City Clerk Phillips read a letter from Caser & Stapleton, engineers, recommending that the contract for demolition, razing and removing two old houses from the site of the new municipal parking lot on North Maudslayi street be awarded to the Flynn Construction Co., which submitted a low bid of $850. On motion of Alderman Allen, seconded by Alderman DeFrates, the Flynn company was voted the contract for the job.

The clerk read a letter from William M. Dutelle, an engineer of the Illinois Division of Highways, announcing that plans for automatic traffic lights to be installed at West State and Church streets have been approved. The new lights will be placed at the intersection during resurfacing activities, scheduled for this summer.

Alderman Hall of the finance committee told the council that 300 delinquent wheel tax accounts have been collected through activities of the police department. A total of $30,900 has been received in wheel taxes to date, or more than this time last year.

The start of weed cutting operations was announced by Alderman Kelly of the highway committee, who said the forestry department took down a couple of dangerous trees yesterday.

Insurance Comes In Handy
Alderman Sims of the light committee expressed gratitude that the explosion in a 2,000 horsepower motor at the municipal light plant last week did not result in serious consequences, although two operators sustained burns. Damage to the motor in which the blast occurred and a companion motor is covered by insurance, Sims stated. The city some months ago took out a policy on its heavy machinery, which in the light of what happened last week was good business.

N. J. Butler, superintendent of the utilities department, said an engineer of Fairbanks, Morse & Co. in the city, and that the exact damage of the explosion, caused by an accumulation of gas in the starting chamber, has not yet been determined.

Read Repeal Ordinance

An ordinance for repeal of the ordinance for the city of Jacksonville, which has been discussed at several previous meetings, received first reading after motions by Alderman Kelly and Fitzsimmons. All councilmen joined in the motion for first reading, with exception of Alderman Allen.

The ordinance creating the office of magistrate was adopted in 1947. The measure now before the council, which will come up for disposition next week, would abolish the office as of May 31.

Mayor Hoagland explained that an ordinance regulating parking on South Main street from the public square to Michigan avenue is necessary in connection with resurfacing operations, to meet requirements of the Illinois Division of Highways.

Subsequently, an ordinance was given first reading on motions of Alderman Sims and Sheerin, that "all parking, other than parking parallel with the curbs, is prohibited on or along South Main street" in the area mentioned.

Tighten Sanitation Laws

A proposed ordinance tightening laws regarding sanitation received first reading after motions by Alderman DeFrates and Kelly. It prohibits the construction of houses without toilet facilities, and declares that houses not served by toilet facilities on the same lot can be ruled as nuisances and demolished, if the owner does not comply with the law. Fines from $10 to $200 are included in the measure.

Alderman Fitzsimmons said he believes the police are "doing a fine job collecting the delinquent wheel taxes."

Members of the Court were guests of the Valparaiso University School of Law.

The hypothetical "case" argued by the second year law students involved some of the legal difficulties arising out of artificial rain-making.

While reporting the stage of Lake Jacksonville as 11 feet, 1 inch under the spillway, Alderman Goodey of the public improvement committee threw in some extra information—the crepple fishing is reported better-than-usual.

The need of a new three-quarter ton truck in the sewer department was reported by Alderman Allen, who made a motion that bids be received June 4. His motion was seconded by Alderman Greiner, and carried.

Alderman McHatten and Souza were absent from the meeting.

Spray Pilots Stop At Local Airport, Enroute To Canada

Formation flying was displayed Sunday, May 20, by experienced spray pilots.

Twelve Stearman, an aircraft used for spraying, landed at the Jacksonville Municipal Airport as one of their scheduled refueling stops.

The Marsh Aviation Co., Inc., of Phoenix, Ariz., has a contract with the Canadian government to spray 2,400,000 acres of timber in the provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick.

The airplanes are flown from Phoenix to Canada for this project, a total of 4,000 miles.

The pilots expect to finish this job around July 1, and will then make the return flight to Phoenix via Jacksonville.

Several of the flyers stopped here last year, when they had the same spraying contract with Canada, and they appreciated the servicing facilities at the Municipal airport so well that Jacksonville was made a scheduled refueling stop on their routes, they said.

Circus Gives Two Shows Here Monday
Hagen Brothers circus, the first of the season to visit Jacksonville, held the center of attention Monday at the show grounds on East Walnut street where the first of two performances was given at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The final performance was at 8 p.m.

The circus, traveling by truck, rolled into town Sunday morning. Trucks and trailers soon were grouped at the Hempel show grounds, where tents were raised and other equipment assembled.

Several performing elephants rode into Jacksonville in big vans, and started munching hay soon after arrival.

The circus, sponsored here by the American Legion, plays Springfield Tuesday.

At noon two elephants were taken on foot to the public square and lumbered through the business district. While they were only a small segment of the old-time circus street parade, they served to let citizens know that a circus was in town.

They were taken into Morgan county court Monday morning, entered pleas of guilty and asked to be admitted to probation.

Judge Fenstermaker continued both cases until May 28, while the probation officer makes his investigation.

COOK GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE BABY ADOPTIONS
CHICAGO (AP)—Cook County State's Atty. John Guhnkecht announced plans Monday for a grand jury investigation of illegal baby adoptions.

A 1955 Illinois statute prohibits placement of children for payment by other than licensed welfare agencies. Violation can result in a fine of $300 to $1,000, or a three-month to one-year prison sentence, or both, for the first conviction.

A second offense can result in a 1 to 10-year jail sentence.

Guhnkecht said witnesses in two cases will be called before the grand jury May 28. He refused to give names or case histories until the subpoenas are served, hinting that such information might cause the persons sought to flee.

Guhnkecht said, "These are the first clear cut cases where we feel we have sufficient evidence to get convictions."

Former Bath Man Burned To Death

CHANDLERVILLE—Robert Lee Sarff, former Bath resident and son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sarff of Bath, burned to death early Sunday when fire of undetermined origin consumed his home at Atterberry in Menard county. The dead man's wife, the former Patricia Shawgo, and the couple's year old son, Neal, escaped from the burning home unharmed.

Sarff's body was found in a garage adjoining the burned home after flames subsided.

Mrs. Sarff said she and her husband heard an explosion about 6:30 in the morning and in night clothing she and her son escaped from the burning building. It was not known why Mr. Sarff was unable to make his way clear.

No evidence was found to indicate the cause of the fire. The home is heated by bottled gas and there was heat turned on during the chill of the night.

Menard county coroner Dr. T. V. Clews, conducted an inquest Sunday afternoon with the jury's verdict being accidental death.

The deceased was employed by the Dunham elevator company. The Petersburg fire department responded to the call and also John Schirring, a farmer in the vicinity having his own fire fighting equipment, worked to control the flames but was unable to save the building.

The deceased is survived by his wife whom he married Oct. 30, 1954; his son, Neal; his parents of Bath; a sister, Mrs. Lory Gibbons of Peoria and two brothers, Wayne of Havana and James of Bath.

The body is at the Lintner funeral home here. Services will be held at 2:30 p.m. daylight time Tuesday at the funeral home with Rev. Russell Pittman of Springfield officiating. Interment will be made in the Snicarte cemetery.

Illinois Man Pleads Guilty To Arson Charge
KENOSHA, Wis. (AP)—A 29-year-old Illinois man Monday pleaded guilty to arson charges in connection with a $16,800 fire at his home here and also police said, admitted setting fire to homes in Indiana and Michigan in order to collect more than $35,000 in insurance.

Municipal Judge Harry Carlson ordered a presentence investigation for Robert Earl Jones of Mahomet, Ill., after guilty pleas were entered to charges of arson and arson with intent to defraud an insurer.

Jones told police he built his home here last October after collecting $25,500 from insurance companies for fires he set in houses in Richmond and Huntington, Ind., and Ypsilanti, Mich.

Chief Investigator William P. Schmitt quoted Jones as saying he set all four fires the same way—by turning on an electric heater near cans of paint and turpentine and then making sure he was far from the scene when the fire was discovered. Schmitt said Jones' latest effort at arson, on April 26, netted him $12,000 on the structure and $4,800 on the contents.

Schmitt listed these other fires and the insurance collected: Richmond, early in 1953, $3,900; Huntington, September 1954, $12,000; and Ypsilanti, January 1955, $9,600.

PARKING METERS TAKE BEATING
MARSHALL, Ill. (AP)—A Martinsville farmer who doesn't like parking meters proved it Sunday night. He smashed 33 of them on the city square and was lured at missing 2.

Ronald Medsker, 30, came to Marshall in his farm truck, drove it onto the sidewalk and around the square shearing off the meters like bowling pins.

Sheriff Milo Pearce jumped on the running board in an attempt to break up the game. Medsker pushed him off. The sheriff followed the truck to Medsker's home and brought him back to jail.

The farmer was held without charge. He confided he didn't like the meters. Pearce said Medsker had undergone mental treatment.
